Law and the regulatory authority

1 Legislative framework

Summarise the legislative framework for the protection of personally identifiable information (PII). Does your jurisdiction have a dedicated data protection law? Is the data protection law in your jurisdiction based on any international instruments on privacy or data protection?

The Act on the Protection of Personal Information of 2003 (the APPI) sits at the centre of Japan's regime for the protection of PII. Serving as a comprehensive, cross-sectoral framework, the APPI regulates private businesses using databases of PII and is generally considered to embody the eight basic principles under the OECD Guidelines on the Protection of Privacy and Transborder Flows of Personal Data. Use of PII by the public sector is regulated by separate statutes or local ordinances providing for rules for protection of PII held by governmental authorities.

In September 2015, the first-ever significant amendment to the APPI (the Amendment) since its introduction was promulgated. The Amendment aims to eliminate the ambiguity of the current regulatory framework and facilitate the proper use of personal data by businesses while strengthening the protection of privacy. It also aims to address global data transfers and harmonise Japan's data protection regime with that of other major jurisdictions. The Amendment was fully implemented on 30 May 2017.

The APPI, as amended by the Amendment (the Amended APPI), is implemented by cross-sectoral administrative guidelines prepared by the Personal Information Protection Committee (the Committee). With respect to certain sectors, such as medical, financial and telecommunications, the Committee and/or the relevant governmental ministries have published sector-specific guidance providing for additional requirements given the highly sensitive nature of personal information handled by private business operators in those sectors. Numerous self-regulatory organisations and industry associations have also adopted their own policies or guidelines for the protection of PII.

2 Data protection authority

Which authority is responsible for overseeing the data protection law? Describe the investigative powers of the authority.

The Committee was established on 1 January 2016 as a cross-sectoral, independent governmental body to oversee the APPI. The Committee has the following powers under the Amended APPI:

- to require reports concerning the handling of PII or anonymised information from PII data users (as defined in question 9) or private business operators using database, etc, of anonymised information (for the purposes of this chapter, anonymised information users);
- to conduct an on-site inspection of offices or other premises of PII data users and anonymised information users in order to raise questions and inspect records with respect to their handling of PII or anonymised information;
- to give 'guidance' or 'advice' necessary for the handling of PII or anonymised information to PII data users and anonymised information users;

- upon violation of certain obligations of any PII data users or anonymised information users and to the extent deemed necessary to protect the rights of an affected individual, to 'recommend' cessation or other measures necessary to rectify the violation; and
- if recommended measures are not implemented and the governmental ministry deems imminent danger to the affected individual's material rights, to 'order' such measures.

The Committee may delegate the power to require reports or conduct an on-site inspection as mentioned above to certain governmental ministries in cases where the Committee deems it necessary to be able to give 'guidance' or 'advice' to PII data users or anonymised information users effectively.

3 Breaches of data protection

Can breaches of data protection law lead to administrative sanctions or orders, or criminal penalties? How would such breaches be handled?

Under the Amended APPI, criminal penalties may be imposed if:

- a PII data user or an anonymised information user fails to comply with any order issued by the Committee (subject to penal servitude of up to six months or a criminal fine of up to ¥300,000); or
- a PII data user or an anonymised information user fails to submit reports, or submits untrue reports, as required by the Committee (subject to a criminal fine of up to ¥300,000).
- a PII data user or an anonymised information user refuses or interrupts an on-site inspection of the offices or other premises by the Committee (subject to a criminal fine of up to ¥300,000); or
- any current or former officer, employee or representative of a PII data user provides to a third party or steals information from a PII database he or she handled in connection with the business of the PII data user with a view to providing unlawful benefits to himself or herself or third parties (subject to penal servitude of up to one year or a criminal fine of up to ¥500,000).

If the foregoing offences are committed by an officer or employee of a PII data user or an anonymised information user that is a judicial entity, then the entity itself may also be held liable for a criminal fine.

Scope

4 Exempt sectors and institutions

Does the data protection law cover all sectors and types of organisation or are some areas of activity outside its scope?

The Amended APPI contains notable exemptions as follows:

- In respect of fundamental constitutional rights, media outlets and journalists, universities and other academic institutions, religious groups and political parties are exempt from the Amended APPI to the extent of the processing of personal data for purposes of journalism, academic research and religious and political activities, respectively.
- Use of PII for personal purposes is outside the scope of the Amended APPI. Use of PII by not-for-profit organisations or sole proprietorships is within the scope of the Amended APPI.

5 Communications, marketing and surveillance laws

Does the data protection law cover interception of communications, electronic marketing or monitoring and surveillance of individuals? If not, list other relevant laws in this regard.

Secrecy of communications from the government's intrusion is a constitutional right. Interception of electronic communication by private persons is regulated by the Telecommunications Business Act of 1984 and the Act on the Limitation of Liability for Damages of Specified Telecommunications Service Providers and the Right to Demand Disclosure of Identification Information of the Senders of 2001. Marketing emails are restricted under the Act on Regulation of Transmission of Specified Electronic Mail of 2002 and the Act on Specified Commercial Transactions of 1976.

6 Other laws

Identify any further laws or regulations that provide specific data protection rules for related areas.

Use of personal information by governmental sectors is regulated by the Act on the Protection of Personal Information Held by Administrative Organs of 2003, the Act on the Protection of Personal Information Held by Incorporated Administrative Agencies of 2003 and various local ordinances providing rules for the protection of PII held by local governments. In addition, the Act on Utilisation of Numbers to Identify Specific Individuals in Administrative Process provides rules concerning the use of personal information acquired through the use of the individual social security and tax numbering system called My Number.

7 PII formats

What forms of PII are covered by the law?

In terms of forms of PII, the use of 'database, etc' of PII (PII database) is covered by the Amended APPI. PII database includes not only electronic databases but also manual filing systems that are structured by reference to certain classification criteria so that information on specific individuals is easily searchable.

For purposes of the Amended APPI, PII is defined as information related to a living individual that can identify the specific individual by name, date of birth or other description contained in such information. Information that, by itself, is not personally identifiable but may be easily linked to other information and thereby can be used to identify a specific individual is also regarded as PII. PII also includes signs, code or data that identify physical features of specific individuals, such as fingerprint or face recognition data, or that are assigned to each individual by government or providers of goods or services, such as a driving licence number or passport number. PII comprising a PII database is called PII data.

In addition, the Amendment has introduced the concept of 'anonymised information'; that is, personal information of a particular individual that has been irreversibly processed in such a manner that the individual is no longer identifiable. Anonymised information that complies with the requirements of the techniques and processes for anonymisation under the Amendment is not considered PII. Anonymised information may be disclosed to third parties without the consent of the relevant individual, provided that the business operator who processes and discloses anonymised information to third parties comply with certain disclosure requirements.

8 Extraterritoriality

Is the reach of the law limited to PII owners and processors of PII established or operating in the jurisdiction?

The Amended APPI has limited extraterritorial application. Specifically, the Amended APPI is applicable to foreign PII data users or anonymised information users when they use or process, outside of Japan, (i) PII of individuals residing in Japan as was obtained in connection with the provision of goods or services by the PII data users to Japanese resident individuals; or (ii) anonymised information produced by the PII data users based on such PII.

Separately, PII of individuals residing outside of Japan is considered to be protected under the Amended APPI as long as such PII is held by private business operators established or operating in Japan.

9 Covered uses of PII

Is all processing or use of PII covered? Is a distinction made between those who control or own PII and those who provide PII processing services to owners?

The Amended APPI distinguishes between: (i) obligations imposed on all private business operators using PII database (for the purposes of this chapter, called PII data users); and (ii) obligations imposed only on those PII data users who control the relevant PII data (for the purposes of this chapter, called PII data owners). Generally, service providers are subject to the obligations of PII data users but not subject to the obligations of PII data owners.

The obligations of all PII data users mentioned in (i) include:

- to specify the purposes for which the PII is used and to process the PII only to the extent necessary for achieving such specified purposes (see question 10);
- to notify the relevant individual of, or publicise, the purposes of use prior to or at the time of collecting PII (see question 12);
- not to use deceptive or wrongful means in collecting PII (see question 10);
- to obtain the consent of the individual prior to collecting sensitive personal information (subject to certain exceptions) (see question 11);
- to endeavour to keep its PII data accurate and up to date to the extent necessary for the purposes of use, and erase, without delay, its PII data that is no longer needed to be used (see question 15);
- to undertake necessary and appropriate measures to safeguard the PII data it holds (see question 19);
- to conduct necessary and appropriate supervision over its employees and its service providers who process its PII data (see question 19);
- not to disclose the PII data to any third party without the consent of the individual (subject to certain exemptions) (see question 29);
- to prepare and keep records of third-party transfers of personal data (subject to certain exceptions) (see question 22);
- when acquiring personal data from a third party other than data subjects (subject to certain exceptions), to verify the name of the third party and how the third party acquired such personal data (see question 22); and
- not to conduct cross-border transfers of personal data without the consent of the individual (subject to certain exceptions) (see question 31).

The PII data owners mentioned in (ii) have additional and more stringent obligations, which are imposed only with respect to such PII data for which a PII data owner has the right to provide a copy of, modify (correct, add or delete), discontinue using, erase or discontinue disclosure to third parties (retained PII data):

- to make accessible to the relevant individual certain information regarding the retained PII data (see question 12);
- to provide, without delay, a copy of retained PII data to the relevant individual upon his or her request (see question 34);
- to correct, add or delete the retained PII data to the extent necessary for achieving the purposes of use upon the request of the relevant individual (see question 14);
- to discontinue the use of or erase such retained PII data upon the request of the relevant individual if such use is or was made, or the retained PII data in question was obtained, in violation of the Amended APPI (see question 14); and
- to discontinue disclosure of retained PII data to third parties upon the request of the relevant individual if such disclosure is or was made in violation of the Amended APPI (see question 14).

The following are excluded from the retained PII data and therefore do not trigger the above-mentioned obligations of PII data owners:

- any PII data where the existence or absence of such PII data would harm the life, body and property of the relevant individual or a third party; encourage or solicit illegal or unjust acts; jeopardise the safety of Japan and harm the trust or negotiations with other countries or international organisations; or would impede criminal investigations or public safety; and

- any PII data that is to be erased from the PII database within six months after it became part of the PII database.

Legitimate processing of PII

10 Legitimate processing – grounds

Does the law require that the holding of PII be legitimised on specific grounds, for example to meet the owner’s legal obligations or if the individual has provided consent?

The Amended APPI does not contain specific criteria for legitimate data collection or processing. The Amended APPI does, however, prohibit the collection of PII by deceptive or wrongful means, and requires that the purposes of use must be identified as specifically as possible, and must generally be notified or made available to the relevant individual in advance. Processing of PII beyond the extent necessary for such purposes of use without the relevant individual’s prior consent is also prohibited, subject to limited exceptions.

11 Legitimate processing – types of PII

Does the law impose more stringent rules for specific types of PII?

The Amended APPI imposes stringent rules for ‘sensitive personal information’ (you hairyo kojim jouchou), which includes race, beliefs, social status, medical history, criminal records and the fact of having been a victim of a crime and disabilities. Collection or disclosure under the ‘opt-out’ mechanism of sensitive personal information without the consent of the relevant individual will be generally prohibited.

In addition, the administrative guidelines for the financial sector provide for a similar category of ‘sensitive information’ (kibi jouchou). Such information is considered to include trade union membership, domicile of birth and sexual orientation, in addition to sensitive personal information. The collection, processing or transfer of such sensitive information by financial institutions is prohibited, even with the consent of the relevant individual, except under limited circumstances permitted under such administrative guidelines.

Data handling responsibilities of owners of PII

12 Notification

Does the law require owners of PII to notify individuals whose PII they hold? What must the notice contain and when must it be provided?

There are several notification requirements under the Amended APPI.

First, the Amended APPI requires all PII data users to notify individuals of, or make available to individuals, the purpose for which their PII data is used, promptly after the collection of the PII, unless such purpose was publicised prior to the collection of the PII. Alternatively, such purpose must be expressly stated in writing if collecting PII provided in writing by the individual directly.

Second, when a PII data user is to disclose PII data to third parties without the individual’s consent under the ‘opt-out’ mechanism, one of the requirements that the PII data user must satisfy is that certain information regarding the third-party disclosure is notified, or made easily accessible, to the individual prior to such disclosure (see question 30). Such information includes types of information being disclosed and the manner of disclosure.

Third, the Amended APPI requires each PII data owner to keep certain information accessible to those individuals whose retained PII data is held. Such information includes: the name of the PII data owner; all purposes for which retained PII data held by the PII data owner is generally used; and procedures for submitting a request or filing complaints to the PII data owner. If, based on such information, an individual requests the specific purposes of use of his or her retained PII data, the PII data owner is required to notify, without delay, the individual of such purposes.

13 Exemption from notification

When is notice not required?

There is an exception to the first notice requirement mentioned in question 12 where, among other circumstances: such notice would harm the interest of the individual or a third party; such notice would harm the legitimate interest of the PII data user; and the purposes of use are evident from the context of the collection of the relevant PII data.

14 Control of use

Must owners of PII offer individuals any degree of choice or control over the use of their information? In which circumstances?

Upon request from an individual, a PII data owner must:

- disclose, without delay, retained PII data in written form to the relevant individual upon his or her request (see question 34);
- correct, add or delete the retained PII data to the extent necessary for achieving the purposes of use upon request from the relevant individual;
- discontinue the use of or erase the retained PII data upon the request of the relevant individual if such use is or was made, or the retained PII data in question was obtained, in violation of the Amended APPI; and
- discontinue disclosure to third parties of retained PII data upon the request of the relevant individual if such disclosure is or was made in violation of the Amended APPI.

An exemption from the third and fourth obligations mentioned above is available where the discontinuance or erasure costs significantly or otherwise impose hardships on the PII data owner and one or more alternative measures to protect the individual’s interests are taken.

15 Data accuracy

Does the law impose standards in relation to the quality, currency and accuracy of PII?

The Amended APPI requires all PII data users to endeavour to (i) keep the PII data they hold accurate and up to date to the extent necessary for the purposes for which the PII data is to be used; and (ii) erase, without delay, such PII data that is no longer needed.

16 Amount and duration of data holding

Does the law restrict the amount of PII that may be held or the length of time it may be held?

No. PII data may be held as long as is necessary for the purposes for which it is used. Under the Amended APPI, PII data users must endeavour to erase, without delay, such PII data that is no longer needed to be used.

17 Finality principle

Are the purposes for which PII can be used by owners restricted? Has the ‘finality principle’ been adopted?

PII can generally be used only to the extent necessary to achieve such specified purposes as notified or made available to the relevant individual in a manner mentioned in question 12. Use beyond such extent or for any other purpose must, in principle, be legitimised by the consent of the relevant individual.

Exemptions from the purposes for use requirement are applicable to, for instance, the use of PII pursuant to laws, and where use beyond specified purposes is needed to protect life, body and property of a person and it is difficult to obtain consent of the affected individual.

18 Use for new purposes

If the finality principle has been adopted, how far does the law allow for PII to be used for new purposes? Are there exceptions or exclusions from the finality principle?

Under the Amended APPI, the purpose for use may be amended, without the consent of the relevant individual, to the limited extent that would be reasonably deemed to be related to the previous purposes.

PII may be used for such amended purposes, provided that the amended purposes be notified or made available to the affected individuals.

Security

19 Security obligations

What security obligations are imposed on PII owners and service providers that process PII on their behalf?

The Amended APPI provides that all PII data users must have in place 'necessary and appropriate' measures to safeguard and protect against unauthorised disclosure of or loss of or damage to the PII data they hold or process; and conduct necessary and appropriate supervision over their employees and service providers who process such PII data. What constitutes 'necessary and appropriate' security measures is elaborated on in the Committee's cross-sectoral administrative guidelines for the Amended APPI (the Committee Guidelines). The Committee Guidelines set forth a long list of four types of mandatory or recommended security measures – organisational, personnel, physical and technical – as well as the requirement to adopt internal security rules or policies.

Some of the sector-specific guidelines, such as the administrative guidelines for the financial sector, provide for more stringent requirements on security measures.

20 Notification of data breach

Does the law include (general and/or sector-specific) obligations to notify the supervisory authority and individuals of data breaches? If breach notification is not required by law, is it recommended by the supervisory authority?

The Amended APPI does not include obligations to notify the regulators or affected individuals of any breaches of security. However, upon the occurrence of any such breach, notification to the Committee, governmental ministries delegated by the Committee, or an accredited personal information protection organisation, if applicable, is generally required or recommended under the Committee Guidelines. Such reporting is not required if the compromised personal data is considered not to have leaked – for instance, the relevant personal data is securely encrypted, was recovered before a third party had access to it, or was destroyed and no third party is reasonably expected to view the relevant personal data. Regulatory reporting is also not required if the relevant data breach is minor – for instance, erroneous transmission of emails or facsimiles or wrong delivery of packages where the compromised personal data is limited to the names of the sender and recipient.

In addition, under the Committee Guidelines, notification of data breaches to data subjects may be necessary depending on the subject and manner of such breaches. If a particular data breach is not expected to result in damage to the relevant data subjects, such as where the breached personal data was securely encrypted, notification to data subjects will not be necessary.

Internal controls

21 Data protection officer

Is the appointment of a data protection officer mandatory? What are the data protection officer's legal responsibilities?

There is no statutory requirement to appoint a data protection officer. However, the appointment of a 'chief privacy officer' is generally recommended under the Committee Guidelines. The Committee Guidelines do not provide for the qualifications, roles or responsibilities of a chief privacy officer.

22 Record keeping

Are owners of PII required to maintain any internal records or establish internal processes or documentation?

PII data users are generally required under the Committee Guidelines to establish internal processes to safeguard PII data.

Under the Amended APPI, PII data users that have disclosed PII data to third parties must generally keep records of such disclosure. In addition, PII data users receiving PII data from third parties rather than the relevant individuals must generally verify how the PII data was acquired by such third parties and keep records of such verification.

The foregoing obligation is not applicable to disclosure of PII data to outsourced processing service providers (see question 29), as part of M&A transactions (see question 30) or for joint use (see question 30), as long as the disclosure is not subject to the cross-border transfer restrictions.

Registration and notification

23 Registration

Are PII owners and/or processors of PII required to register with the supervisory authority? Are there any exemptions?

Under the Amended APPI, PII data users who disclose PII data (other than sensitive personal information) under the 'opt-out' mechanism are required to submit a notification to the Committee prior to such disclosure. According to the Committee, the primary target of this requirement is mailing list brokers.

24 Formalities

What are the formalities for registration?

PII data users who disclose PII data under the 'opt-out' mechanism mentioned in question 23 are required to notify the Commission, in a prescribed format, of the categories of personal data to be disclosed, the method of disclosure, the manner in which the relevant individual may request to cancel such 'opt-out' disclosure to the PII data users and other designated matters. Upon receipt of such notification, the Committee will publicise certain information included in the notification.

25 Penalties

What are the penalties for a PII owner or processor of PII for failure to make or maintain an entry on the register?

No penalties are statutorily provided for the failure to submit a notification of the 'opt-out' disclosure mentioned in questions 23 and 24.

26 Refusal of registration

On what grounds may the supervisory authority refuse to allow an entry on the register?

Not applicable.

27 Public access

Is the register publicly available? How can it be accessed?

Notifications of the 'opt-out' disclosure mentioned in questions 23 and 24 are partially made public on the Committee's website.

28 Effect of registration

Does an entry on the register have any specific legal effect?

A notification of the 'opt-out' disclosure mentioned in questions 23 and 24 is a requirement to lawfully disclose PII data (other than sensitive personal information) to third parties without the relevant individual's consent under the 'opt-out' mechanism.

Transfer and disclosure of PII

29 Transfer of PII

How does the law regulate the transfer of PII to entities that provide outsourced processing services?

The Amended APPI generally prohibits disclosure of PII data to third parties without the relevant individual's consent. As an exception to such prohibition, the transfer of all or part of PII data to persons that provide outsourced processing services is permitted to the extent such services are necessary for achieving the permitted purposes of use. PII data users are required to engage in 'necessary and appropriate' supervision over such service providers in order to safeguard the transferred PII data. Necessary and appropriate supervision by PII data users is generally considered to include proper selection of service providers; entering into a written contract setting forth necessary and appropriate security measures; and collecting necessary reports and information from the service providers.

30 Restrictions on disclosure

Describe any specific restrictions on the disclosure of PII to other recipients.

In principle, the Amended APPI prohibits disclosure of PII to a third party without the individual's consent. Important exceptions to the general prohibition include the following, in addition to disclosure for outsourced processing services mentioned in question 29 above:

- disclosure under the 'opt-out' mechanism: a PII data user may disclose PII data to third parties without the individual's consent, provided that it is prepared to cease such disclosure upon request from the individual; certain information regarding such disclosure is notified, or made easily accessible, to the individual prior to such disclosure; and such information is notified to the Committee in advance;
- transfer in M&A transactions: PII data may be transferred without the consent of the individual in connection with the transfer of business as a result of a merger or other transactions; and
- disclosure for joint use: a PII data user may disclose PII data it holds to a third party for joint use, provided that certain information regarding such joint use is notified, or made easily accessible, to the individual prior to such disclosure. Such disclosure is most typically made when sharing customer information among group companies in order to provide seamless services within the permitted purposes of use. Information required to be notified or made available includes items of PII data to be jointly used, the scope of third parties who would jointly use the PII data, the purpose of use by such third parties, and the name of a party responsible for the control of the PII data in question.

31 Cross-border transfer

Is the transfer of PII outside the jurisdiction restricted?

Under the Amended APPI, the transfer of PII data to a third party located outside of Japan is generally subject to prior consent of the relevant individual, subject to the important exceptions mentioned below.

First, no prior consent of the relevant individual is required if the third party is located in a foreign country that the Commission considers has the same level of protection of personal information as Japan. At the time of writing, however, no country is designated as such by the Committee.

The second exception is applicable where the relevant third-party transferee has established a system to continuously ensure its undertaking of the same level of protective measures as PII data users would be required under the Amended APPI. According to the Committee Guidelines, in order for this exception to apply, the PII data user and the foreign third party may ensure in a contract that the third party undertakes such protective measures; and if the third party is an intra-group affiliate, the data user and the foreign third party may rely on a privacy statement or internal policies applicable to the group that are appropriately drafted and enforced. In addition, this exception is generally applicable if the foreign third party has certification from an internationally recognised framework of protection of personal data; specifically, certification under the APEC's Cross Border Privacy Rules (CBPR) system.

32 Notification of cross-border transfer

Does cross-border transfer of PII require notification to or authorisation from a supervisory authority?

No, cross-border transfer of PII does not trigger a requirement to notify or obtain authorisation from a supervisory authority.

33 Further transfer

If transfers outside the jurisdiction are subject to restriction or authorisation, do these apply equally to transfers to service providers and onwards transfers?

The restrictions on the cross-border transfers of PII mentioned in question 31 are applicable to transfers to service providers. They may also be applicable to onward transfers in the sense that the initial PII data users must ensure that not only the transferors of such onward transfers but also their transferees adhere to the cross-border restrictions of the Amended APPI.

Rights of individuals

34 Access

Do individuals have the right to access their personal information held by PII owners? Describe how this right can be exercised as well as any limitations to this right.

The Amended APPI imposes on PII data owners obligations to respond to individuals' requests for access to their PII data. Specifically, upon request from individuals, PII data owners are obligated to disclose, without delay, retained PII data of the requesting individuals. Such disclosure, however, is exempted as a whole or in part if such disclosure would:

- prejudice the life, body, property or other interest of the individual or any third party;
- cause material impediment to proper conduct of the business of the PII owners; or
- result in a violation of other laws.

The Amendment clarifies that individuals have the right to require disclosure of their PII held by PII data owners.

35 Other rights

Do individuals have other substantive rights?

In addition to the obligations set forth in question 14, PII data owners are subject to an obligation to cease disclosure of PII data to third parties if the relevant individual 'opts out' of the third-party disclosure.

Under the Amendment, individuals have the right to require PII data owners to correct, add or delete inaccurate retained PII regarding the individuals, to discontinue the use of or erasure of the retained PII data that is used or was collected in violation of the Amended APPI, or discontinue unlawful disclosure to third parties of retained PII data.

36 Compensation

Are individuals entitled to monetary damages or compensation if they are affected by breaches of the law? Is actual damage required or is injury to feelings sufficient?

The Amended APPI does not provide for individuals' statutory right to receive compensation or the PII data users' obligation to compensate individuals upon a breach of the Amended APPI. However, pursuant to the civil code of Japan, an individual may bring a tort claim based on the violation of his or her privacy right. Breaches of the Amended APPI by a PII data owner will be a factor as to whether or not a tortious act existed. If a tort claim is granted, not only actual damages but also emotional distress may be compensated to the extent reasonable.

37 Enforcement

Are these rights exercisable through the judicial system or enforced by the supervisory authority or both?

Individuals' right to monetary compensation (mentioned in question 36) is enforced through the judicial system. With regard to violations by PII data owners of the obligations described in questions 34 and 35, individuals may exercise their rights described in questions 34 and 35 through the judicial system, provided that they first request the relevant PII data users to comply with such obligations and two weeks have passed after such request was made. Separately, the Committee may recommend PII data owners to undertake measures necessary to remedy such violations if it deems it necessary to do so for the protection of individuals' rights.

Exemptions, derogations and restrictions

38 Further exemptions and restrictions

Does the law include any derogations, exclusions or limitations other than those already described? Describe the relevant provisions.

Not applicable.

Supervision

39 Judicial review

Can PII owners appeal against orders of the supervisory authority to the courts?

Administrative law in Japan usually provides for an appeal of a governmental ministry's decision to a court with proper jurisdiction. Therefore, if the Commission or the relevant governmental ministry to which powers of the Committee are duly delegated by the Committee takes administrative actions against a PII data user, the PII data user will generally be able to challenge the actions judicially.

Specific data processing

40 Internet use

Describe any rules on the use of 'cookies' or equivalent technology.

There are no binding rules applicable to the use of 'cookies' or equivalent technology. Any data collected through the use of cookies is generally considered not to be personally identifiable by itself. If, however, such data can be easily linked to other information and thereby can identify a specific individual, then the data will constitute personal data subject to the Amended APPI.

41 Electronic communications marketing

Describe any rules on marketing by email, fax or telephone.

Unsolicited marketing by email is regulated principally by the Act on Regulation of Transmission of Specified Electronic Mail. Pursuant to the Act, marketing emails can be sent only to a recipient who has 'opted in' to receive them; who has provided the sender with his or her email address in writing (for instance, by providing a business card); who has a business relationship with the sender; or who makes his or her email address available on the internet for business purposes. In addition, the Act requires the senders to allow the recipients to 'opt out'. Marketing emails sent from overseas will be subject to this Act as long as they are received in Japan.

Unsolicited telephone marketing is also regulated by different statutes. It is generally prohibited to make marketing calls to a recipient who has previously notified the caller that he or she does not wish to receive such calls.

42 Cloud services

Describe any rules or regulator guidance on the use of cloud computing services.

The Committee has published its stance that the use of cloud server services to store PII data does not constitute disclosure to outsourced processing service providers as long as it is ensured by contract or otherwise that the service providers are properly restricted from accessing PII data stored on their servers. If the use of a particular cloud computing service is considered to constitute disclosure to outsourced processing service providers, PII data users are required to engage in 'necessary and appropriate' supervision over the cloud service providers in order to safeguard the transferred PII data (see question 29). Additionally, PII data users need to confirm that the service providers, if the servers are located outside of Japan, meet the equivalency test so as not to trigger the requirement to obtain prior consent from the individuals to the cross-border transfer of data (see question 31).
